WE SHALL NAME THIS WORK: "THE GAME OF FOOTBALL, OR, STEP ON HIM AGAIN, HE'S STILL QUIVERING."

The game of Football (or American Rugby) is held to be characteristic of the 'esprit de corps', 'j'ole de vivre', or plain old morale of the great peoples that constitute the populace of the vast American continent (Northern Section). To the unenlightened, it presents profound perplexities, but to the ardent follower, it represents a combined art, science, and accomplishment of the first water. It demands deception, dexterity, cunning, elusiveness, fighting heart, and endless reserve of morale, as well as hunka brute strength.

Each autumn, from Antigonish to Sacramento, and from Akavik to Key West, College men pull on their 'Mam from Mars' costumes (made famous by Knute Rockne and Orson Wells) and proceed to batter the living daylight out of one another, with an obstinate, inflated chumka pighide serving as the sole justification of the homicide. Doubtless the pighide, were it still animate would get up and slowly walk away, but the piece of pork has no such option, and has, therefore, only the satisfaction of registering its protestations by bouncing about in a perfectly random fashion.

We might mention that the game played in the environs of the aforesaid Antigonish demands a name of its own, due to the Scottish tinge with which it is endowed. It is dubbed "rugger", which, in grammatical terminology, is known as the comparative case of 'rugby', the sequence of cases being: rugby, rugger, most ragged. Here the game is played with a more Tony Galentoish ball, which thus justifies rougher, more devastating rules, and also forbids the wearing of padding, since that is just not cricket, you know. But this is another story...

The origin of the game of Football is a mystery to most of us, but in days of yore the neighboring villages of England frequently took part in a game involving the entire populations of each of two communities. The object of the sport was to carry an inflated pighide ball to the opposing town by any means at one's disposal. Conversely, one might use any effective method to cause an aspirant to glory to dis-pighide-ale, so to speak.

Today, civilization has risen to higher plain, culturally, educationally, and in relation to Football.

The field of manoeuvres, has been reduced to a mere 100 or 110 yards in length, for more concentrated action, and the participants (corresponding to the villagers) have been garbed in coloured uniforms, in order to facilitate disentanglement after a "play." There are also gaily marked referees who are hired from the closest penitentiary for the day, and like baseball umpires, are usually "robbers" or "thiefs", who invariably cheat the home team, and are, therefore, only rightly deserving of being "beamed" by a bottle, unless two bottles are available; and there is a tradition which never allows a sparsity of the same at any football stadium from Quebec to New Mexico.

As we have noted, civilization has made giant strides since the days of the game's conception, and so we find that, like everything else in the world, the old game is highly commercialized. Big games now draw 50,000 howling customers (Continued on Page Four.)

Charity Drive Organization Is Effectuated

Representatives In Six Faculties Now Appointed

The organization of the McGill Amalgamated Charities campaign will be in the hands of Joseph Connolly this year. He is to direct the collection of funds with the aid of chairmen appointed in the various faculties. Except in Theology and Dentistry, these representatives have all been chosen.

They are as follows: Robert MacIntosh from Arts and Science, Jack Russell from Commerce, Robert Killam from Engineering, William Stuart from Law, John Charters from Medicine, and Janet Hamilton from Royal Victoria College.

Drive Lasts Week

The drive will last from the 23rd to the 29th of November, and under each representative, a number of canvassers will be delegated to ask subscriptions from every student at McGill. An average donation of $1.00 is expected from each person, making a total of $2,500 or more from the University as a whole.

The executive has stated that this year the drive will last only one week, in contrast to the two weeks that drives have lasted in previous years. The Chairman of the Committee has stated, however, that this is by no means an indication that any less money is needed this year, but it simply means that studies make so many demands upon the time of the students that no more time can be devoted to the charity appeal.

He added that the war, instead of lessening the need for financial assistance to the poor, had in many ways increased the necessity for contributions, because many previous private and governmental bequests have been suspended for the duration of the war. Moreover, the plight of many soldiers' wives in the district is very straitened, because of the slimness of allowances to them, especially where families are large.

Harvesters Invited to Attend Men's Glee Club

This afternoon the Men's Glee Club will hold its regular weekly practice in the Union Ballroom at 5.00. The returned harvesters will make this their first practice.

Some of the pieces to be sung will be new to them, but there will also be "The March of the Men of Harlech," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," and several others known to them. New music has arrived and Mr. Harry Norris, the club director, intends to practise them at today's practice.

Czech Bazaar

A Bazaar and Exhibit of Czechoslovak Handicraft will be held at the Czechoslovak National Hall, 415 St. Catherine St. East, on December 1, 2 and 3, from 1 to 10 p.m., for the benefit of the Czechoslovak Red Cross in Great Britain. Entrance 25c, tickets and cookies included. For tickets please phone T. Bauer, AT 6502, or the Physics building.

Book Exchange Opens To Return Money Due

The Book Exchange opens tomorrow to return money to those students whose books were sold through its agency. The Exchange will open at 9.00 a.m. and will remain open during the morning and for the earlier part of the afternoon.

On page four of today's Daily there appears a list of students who are entitled to collect money from the Book Exchange. In addition to this, there also appears the remaining names of creditors from the last three years. The manager of the Exchange wishes it to be known that if after three years, the money is not called for, it will be forfeited.

Students coming to the Exchange are requested to bring with them the receipts they received when they deposited their books at the Exchange, to avoid confusion.

Women's Union Plans to Begin Music Series with Ross Pratt

The Women's Union announces that Ross Pratt, internationally-known Canadian pianist, will play at R.V.C. Friday, November 27th.

This will be the first of a projected series of three concerts being planned by the music division of the program committee of the Women's Union. It may be remembered that last year a similar plan was formed; Ross Pratt then also initiated the projected series.

This year Mrs. Margaret Simons, who is Ross Pratt's impresario, is enthusiastically working with the Women's Union to arrange the series. Tentative plans have already been formed to engage well-known artists for the other recitals.

Student support at last year's concert was so gratifying the committee says, that success of the concerts this year seems assured. The students are asked to lend their fullest enthusiasm, so that more extensive plans may be made in the future.

Ross Pratt, who opens the series, was born in Winnipeg. He was a child prodigy, writing his own music at five years of age, and performing in public at the more advanced age of nine. Later, he was awarded a scholarship to the Royal Academy. The scholarship was extended from three years to five.

Pratt was enthusiastically received in England. He made his debut there in 1939. His Town Hall debut in 1941 was greeted with highly favorable press reports. Students may remember his broadcast performance (Continued on Page Four)

Two Study Groups Hold Yesterday With S.C.M.

The Student Christian Movement held two study groups yesterday at its meeting place, the S.C.M. House on University street. One, held especially for first year students, discussed the topic 'Understanding Ourselves.' The second subject was 'War Aims and Peace Aims.'

'Understanding Ourselves,' led by Professor Don Ross, endocrinologist, was held from 5.00 to 6.00 p.m. 'War Aims and Peace Aims,' guided by Rev. E. Lute, analyzed the speeches of leading political figures, such as Willkie, Roosevelt, Wallace, and others. This was held from 6.45 to 8.00. The S.C.M. has a weekly program of similar study groups.

War Council Meets; Group Representatives Elected by Members

Discussion of Students' War Work Takes Place

At the War Council's initial meeting in the Union yesterday, representatives of all the clubs elected the Inner Council. Discussion on volunteer registration for war work and a suggestion to aid McGill's effort by speeding courses comprised the remaining business of the War Council. Stewart Willis presided over the meeting as G. H. Fletcher presented the minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll of club representatives.

The Executive War Council, whose delegates represent groupings of clubs, were elected to keep the Council in contact with other organizations of the College and advise in forming its policy. The science group will be headed by Charles Perrault, J. T. N. Atkinson represents the Cultural group, Sidney Lithwick, the Undergraduate Societies. Peter Hall, N. E. White, and Morrey Cross represent the Pastime Group, the Religious Group, and the Entertainment Group, respectively, while Alex Stalker and Jean Mitchell are in charge of the Publications and Residence divisions.

After the chairman opened the meeting for discussion Peter Hall suggested that volunteer registration for war work should be set up on the same procedure as last year. He said that blank forms may be filled in by students, indicating the time at which people will be available.

That sub-committees should meet more often was the suggestion preceding discussion on the International Student Service.

Gordon Hatcher, a student in the Faculty of Medicine, outlined the work of the organizations and proposed that aid be given to this group. It has formerly been McGill's policy he claimed to have campaigns similar to other organizations. It was pointed out that giving books to students in occupied countries would not only raise morale, but contribute to the peace. Mary Margaret Miller described the International Student Assembly in Washington at which Czech and Polish students, who had witnessed the occupation, testified to the need for books. Discussion on the proposal resulted in an unanimous motion to assist the I.S.S.

Winston Mahabir, of the West Indies Society suggested that a discussion group dealing with war problems, in connection with student life, be organized as a buffer for student difficulties.

Compulsory speeding of courses to compress college work within a shorter scholastic year was the next suggestion from the floor.

Before the meeting began, Stewart Willis explained that the harvesting had prevented a meeting of the War Council. Though the harvesting plan was not formulated by the council, this was an important act in the war effort, consequently, business was deferred until students returned from the West.

The first meeting of the Executive War Council will be held tomorrow at five o'clock in the Union.

Organization of the Council this year will follow quite closely the precedent set by last year's activities. Modifications may be made later to suit the needs of new developments and increased activities.

Players Club Meeting
A meeting of the McGill Players Club is to be held in the Players Club room today at 5.30 p.m. The meeting is for purposes of organization, and this year's production will be discussed. There will be a meeting of the Executive at 3 p.m.

Around the Campus

Today: An organizational meeting of the Players' Club will be held at 5.30 p.m. in the Players' Club Room. ... A practice of the Men's Glee Club takes place at 5.00 in the Ballroom.

Tomorrow: The Men's Historical Club will meet at 8.15 p.m. at 5863 Bannantyne Avenue.

Coming: The Amalgamated Charities Drive week, with an objective of $2,500. ... There will be a concert given by Ross Pratt at R.V.C. ... International Students' Day Meeting at Moyne Hall on November 11.

Arts and Science Class Presidents Are Elected

Engineering Banquet Will Hear L. Austin Wright

The Engineering Society will hold its annual banquet on November 20 at 6.45 in the Union Ballroom. Admission will be $1.50 a ticket.

The main speaker of the evening will be L. Austin Wright, assistant director of National Selective Service, who will discuss Selective Service and how it will affect Engineers. Mr. Wright has already addressed a group at Queens, where he clarified the position of college men in regard to military regulations. A record turnout is expected at the banquet, and plans are under discussion for a floor show.

Players' Club Meets Today

Activities For Coming Year Will Be Planned

The McGill Players' Club will hold its first meeting at 5.30 p.m. in the Players' Club Room in the basement of the Union. This will be an organizational meeting, at which the plans for the coming year will be discussed.

The executive of the club will meet at 3.00 p.m. At this meeting, the plans to be discussed at the following meeting will be decided upon. So far, the policy of the club will follow the same general lines as it did last year. That is, they will produce only one play, which will be put on some time in the spring. The question of what play is to be produced will be discussed at the meeting.

Last year, under the direction of John Mellor, the Players' Club presented a short, one-act comedy entitled "Out of the Frying Pan." The executive has stated that all those interested in acting or producing are invited to attend the meeting.

Macc Circle Dance Will Feature Cake Contest

At 8.00 p.m. Saturday, November 14, the Maccabean Circle will hold a Victory Dance in the Grill Room of the Union. The admission will be $65 cents per couple, and members and their friends are cordially invited. The feature of the evening will be a cake-baking contest.

Entries for this contest must be referred to Eudice Rosenberg, DO. 2569, or Lillian Brown, DE. 8043, by Friday night. "War-time Cakes," that is those not requiring too much sugar, are requested, and recipes should be attached. Contestants may substitute from one to two dozen cookies for the cake.

Undergrad Society Extends Limit; Asks More Nominations

George Milne, Jim Darragh, and Les Darragh have been elected to the presidency of the first, second and third year classes respectively of the Faculty of Arts and Science, it was announced yesterday. All three were elected by acclamation, their nominations being uncontested. At the same time, the officers of the fourth year were announced: Earl Corey, president; George McColm, vice-president, and Ross R. MacDonald, secretary-treasurer.

Nominations are still open for the offices of vice-president and secretary of first, second and third year. They must be signed by at least ten people and handed in to either Bill Gentleman in the Arts Building or to Miss Heasley in the Union by 2.00 p.m. today.

It was also announced that the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society is calling for nominations to fill the posts recently made empty by the resignations of Thomas Hardwick, President, Seth Taylor, Secretary, and Stan Eldinger, Treasurer of the Society. All nominations must be signed by at least ten people and submitted to Bill Gentleman or to Miss Heasley before two p.m. Monday, November 16th. The President and the Treasurer must be nominated from the fourth year, and the Secretary from the second.

Commerce Holds First Luncheon

Society Hears Speaker; Makes Plans for Year

The Commerce Undergraduate Society will hold its first luncheon-meeting of the year on Thursday at 1.00 p.m. in the McGill Union Grill Room.

The purpose of this meeting is to get Commerce students together in an informal manner, to discuss the activities of the Society and also to make plans for the industrial trips which will be made during the year. As in previous years, there will be a guest speaker at the meeting, as yet, the name of this guest speaker has not been announced.

This year the executive of the Undergraduate Society is planning to set up some form of bowling league in the School of Commerce. The exact arrangements for the setting up of this league have not yet been made, since there is some difficulty in finding a time suitable to students' taking lectures in the afternoon. Some definite announcements concerning this will be made at the luncheon.

Both male and female students in the School of Commerce may attend this luncheon-meeting. The executive of the Society express the hope that as many Freshmen and Freshettes as possible will be (Continued on Page Four.)

Music Candidates Are To Be Heard in Concert

First of Series Will Be Presented In Conservatorium

On Thursday, November 12 at 5.00 p.m., students at the Conservatorium, who are candidates for the Local Centre Examinations, and who obtained the highest marks in their grade, are to give a concert at the Conservatorium Hall.

Those in charge of the concert have expressed the hope that all students who are interested in music, and in the progress made by the music scholars will attend the concert.

The program is to be extremely varied, it has been announced, selections varying from "Mary Had A Little Lamb," by Audrey Cooke to a Choral Prelude by Bach. Other composers who are to be represented include Mozart, Grieg (Concerto in A Minor; first movement), Haydn, Mendelssohn, Tschalkowsky and Vaughan Williams.

The choice of media are also to be somewhat diverse the executive adds. There is to be some thinging, both by individuals and by a choir, and the instruments to be heard range all the way from the organ to the clarinet. The ages of the participants are from seven to 21.

According to Sampson Rosemarin, member of the committee of the Conservatorium, further concerts are to be given later in the war. These will include a concert by the scholarship students of the Conservatorium, and later a concert by the Conservatorium orchestra.

Commerce School Will Elect New Representative

Students in the School of Commerce will go to the polls on Friday to elect their representative to the Students' Council. Running for the position are Kevin Power and Mike Rossy, both fourth year students.

The elections will take place in the Common Room of the Arts Building from 9.00 a.m. to 2.00 p.m. Ballot forms will be used.

Last year's commerce students elected Don Delvin as their representative. Delvin, however, attended the summer school and graduated under the speed up plan. As a result a new representative must be chosen.

Ray Affleck, past secretary of the Commerce Undergraduate Society, has also left the school. The presiding executive will appoint a student in second year to take up this officer's duties. The name of the appointment will be announced at a forth-coming election.

The results of the elections of class officers in Commerce have been announced. In fourth year Harvey Broger became president, Auguste Maltais was chosen vice-president, and Mary Sidorchuk became secretary-treasurer.

Civil Engineering Society Sees United Shipyards

The McGill Civil Engineering Society visited the United Shipyards in Pointe St. Charles last Saturday. The group was composed of sixteen students, accompanied by Professors Dodd and Arcand.

The party was led through the main machine shop and the boiler room. They were able to examine plates prior to riveting, reinforced trusses, and they studied steam heating.

The Society was recently revived at McGill. Students of third and fourth year Civil Engineering are automatic members, and members have invited students of lower years to join if they are interested.

Frosh Speak at Annual Contest

Best Orator Will Receive Bovey Shield

The Bovey Shield Competition, an annual debating event open to Freshmen and Freshettes, will be held on November 16 or 17 in the Union Music Room. The date will be arranged to the convenience of the majority of those who wish to take part.

Any first year student interested in taking part in the competition should sign the list posted for that purpose. Three of these are posted throughout the campus, one in the Arts Building, one in the McGill Union, and one in R.V.C. Contestants are asked to sign under the date which is most suitable for them, or under both if they have no preference.

The exact date of the competition will be announced in the Daily on Friday, November 13. According to the rules prescribed for the Bovey Shield Competition, the subject will be announced in the Daily issued on the day of the event. All contestants must speak for five minutes on the topic, either supporting or refuting it.

Men's Historical Club To Hold First Meeting

The Men's Historical Club will begin this season's series of meetings with a paper on "Pedro II of Brazil" which is to be read by Bert Applebaum. The meeting will be held tomorrow evening at 8.15 p.m. at the home of John Patterson, 5335 Bannantyne Avenue in Verdun.

After the delivery of the paper items of business will be dealt with. A new President of the Club is to be elected, and plans for the current session will be brought forward for discussion by the members. The name of the winner of the annual book prize for History will be announced at this meeting.

Encouraging News...

For perhaps the first time since September, 1939, the people of the United Nations have cause for a glow of well-being, as they read their newspapers. For the news that we read these days is the kind that we want to hear, and the kind that has been so lacking for the past three years. But now it is a fact that the United Nations have started an offensive that, according to latest reports, is proving highly successful.

It is obvious, from reading and hearing reports, that this is an action that has been long in preparation. But because of military secrecy no word of it had leaked out. Instead many people were wondering what had been happening to the General Staffs. Now we know that they had been planning this attack in North Africa, which is giving us all such an uplift.

Already are heard among the arm chair military experts, who haunt every part of the campus, dreams, hopes and plans for complete annihilation of the Axis North African Armies with the capture of Rommel. And from there, these experts go on to an immediate attack on Italy in order to strike at Germany, or an attack on Greece so as to effect union with Russian troops. Whatever these arm chair experts plan, they overlook the months of preparation that lay behind such a relatively simple effort as the Americans effected in North Africa. They overlook the relatively small number of men involved in the present fighting as compared with the large numbers that will be needed to land in Europe. What these experts do agree on and what they are no doubt right about is that North Africa, once in control of the United Nations, will eventually serve as a base for operations of some kind against Europe.

Whether North Africa is the second front or not will be seen in the course of time. But that it is proving to be the second front of morale is beyond question. For the feeling of elation that prevails now will hearten the home front as few things have in the past. The worker in the factory producing munitions, the farmer producing food can all point to their role in this present campaign with a feeling of pride.

And the university student can also point to this campaign with a feeling of pride. Many of the officers and men engaged in active combat are university graduates, prepared for their role by their university training. Many of the instruments, both death-dealing and life-saving, were invented and are used by university men.

Those of us who are here in the university today want to be over there. But we are not. Therefore we must do our part here. We now see what the future months hold in store for us. But the number of those months is unknown. So we must get the most out of our present work so that we are able to carry on the way that this offensive is being carried on—victoriously.

Music Notes

"THE WOMEN" AGAIN.

Music lovers who gaped at Ethel Starke's "self-made" orchestra some years ago, and decided that it just couldn't be done, will be interested to hear that the Montreal Women's Symphony is beginning its third season this week, under Miss Starke's baton. On Thursday evening it will play a Handel-Beethoven-Tschalkowsky program in Plateau Hall. Orre Pernal, English woman violinist, will be the soloist in the Beethoven violin concerto. The full program follows:

Passacaglia ..Handel (arr. Hamilton Harty)
Violin Concerto in D. major Beethoven
Symphony No. 5 Tschalkowsky

Tickets are available at Willis and Company Ltd., and at the Orchestra's headquarters, 1010 St. Catherine St. W. The telephone number is HA. 5536. —R.A.M.

The Men Step Out

by Sasha Campi

THE FARMERETTES CHOOSE A KING

The Harvesters' Ball was one of the gayest, rowdiest, jolliest dances of the season with the men surpassing the girls for once with their colourful and original clothes. Everything from sombreros to cowboy boots, from fur hats to overalls, from everyday suits to evening dress, from ski shirts to slippers were to be found in quantity. It seemed that no matter what a fellow wore to the dance, he was still unique, and that's something where men's fashions are concerned.

The men even staged a fashion show which was more like a male bathing beauty contest, judging by the way the men sauntered, walked self-consciously, and tripped demurely across the floor in front of the applauding spectators. In fact the only dead thing of the event was the chicken presented to the high-heeled, handsome, and bearded cowboy, who was chosen Kampus King. We also adored the little rustic with the fur hat and overalls who looked as if he'd been "working on the railroad all the livelong day", and the Tyrolean youth with the immodestly naked knees. Could it have been that he was trying to sway the judges by leg art?

THE GIRLS FOLLOW AFTER.

Although the girls took a back seat Friday night, they didn't sit far behind the boys, for their clothes were also varied. There were the everyday casual low heels and sweaters, pumps and tea dresses, and even a couple of formals. There was a pretty pinafore and a jaunty sailor dress, too. Crepe and wools took the lead as usual in afternoon dresses. Lace is becoming more common nowadays to lend an extra feminine effect to crepes. We noticed a few pretty plain-to-print-skirt dresses.

NEWMANITES BANISH THE BLUES.

All girls who wore blue dresses to the Newman Informal Saturday night lived to regret it. For in an elimination dance contest (in which couples were eliminated because their birthdays came between May and September or because the men wore watches, and the like), the very first elimination was that of the girls who wore blue dresses. A little later came the girls with red dresses. We noticed one young lady who didn't know what to do here because although her dress was mostly black, it had two conspicuous plates of red down the bodice. She looked uncertain for a minutes, but there was no live playing so the red couldn't be seen as she danced away, the red hid by her partner, till a more definite specification removed them from the floor. Blacks were very popular, and we were delighted to see the occasional appearance of a rich looking velvet. Outstanding among the dress adornments were the three chubby-headed bears sewn on a bright green wool that peeked stunningly out at us at the Newman luncheon.

THE COLOURED EFFECT.

Then there's the story of the negro servant who was asked why she brought home grapefruit rinds every day.

The colour-conscious servant replied: "It makes our garbage look pretty".

Theatre

"PRIVATE LIVES".

At His Majesty's.

Yesterday evening at His Majesty's Theatre, Ruth Chatterton treated thronging first-nighters to Noel Coward at his very best. In the role of a newly-married divorcee who meets her ex-spouse unexpectedly on their common wedding night, she ranged from sophisticated pleasantry to venomous indignation with a skill at once effortless and convincing. Mr. Coward's matchless dialogue alternately leaped and trickled from her nimble tongue as the sudden changes of pace kept the audience in incessant murmuring wonderment. Here was comedy at its highest—a brilliant star leading a well-chosen cast through the subtle cleverness of a master craftsman of the theatre.

In no way overshadowed in support was the handsome, impressive figure of Ralph Forbes. Displaying a sparkling sense of comedy and an exceptional aptitude for satire, his resonant voice and smooth manner formed a perfect foil for the verbal lightning with which Miss Chatterton flashed through the script. Even apart from his flawless and polished acting, his deft pantomime added effective humour to the neat verbiage of the play.

Louise Kanastreff and John Grogan gave appealing performances as the newly-wed spouses of the respective ex-partners, though occasionally unable to maintain the consummate lightness with which Miss Chatterton and Mr. Forbes endowed their roles. Michael Coghlin made his bit as the Mexican houseboy a worthy contribution entirely in keeping with the mood and tempo of the action. Russell Lewis's direction left nothing to be desired; Harry Bennett's sets were tasteful, attractive, and completely adequate.

Altogether, it made an unusually pleasant evening. Especially memorable was the riotous turmoil on which the second-act curtain descended; and the last ten minutes of the play rose to a brilliantly executed climax with few parallels in all drama. A special bouquet to Miss Chatterton and her associates for a singularly enjoyable accomplishment. V. C. G.

Theatre Notes

"WATCH ON THE RHINE".

By Lillian Hellman.

Once again, the Y.M.H.A. Little Theatre has shown itself to be one of the outstanding amateur groups in this city. As a matter of fact, it is hardly fair to class this unit as an amateur group because of the consistently high quality of its productions. In "Watch on the Rhine", by Lillian Hellman (The Little Foxes), director Ade Span had some good material to work with, but this in no way detracts from her credit. In less capable hands, the play might well have been turned into a routine melodrama.

"Watch on the Rhine" is an anti-Nazi play. But in all fairness to Lillian Hellman, it cannot be said that this play is a powerful indictment of Nazism from a propaganda point-of-view. The great, powerful anti-Nazi play, has yet to be written. Nevertheless, Miss Hellman does, by artful writing, manage to produce some highly effective scenes which in themselves bring her message, and her loathing for Nazism across to the audience. The setting (which is the same in all three scenes) is the comfortable aristocratic American home, ruled by a cantankerous matron with a heart of gold, and by family tradition. Into this aristocratic mansion (complete with negro servant) come a series of characters whom Lillian Hellman uses to show the conflict between Nazism and anti-Nazism. The Nazi psychology is allegorized by the Count de Brancovitz, and Kurt Muller is the protagonist of the German Underground. There is a counterplot too, a love affair between David, son of the matron, and the Countess, who abhors Nazism; but this is wisely underplayed by Miss Hellman.

The acting is on the whole good. Particularly fine were Bernard Berlin, who took the part of the Count and Charles J. Lewis who acts the part of Kurt Muller, the anti-Nazi. Mr. Berlin was especially distinguished in his portrayal which was consistent throughout. Considering the fact that he was portraying a genuinely unsympathetic character, it is all to his credit that he did such a fine job. No matter how good the actor, it is always more difficult to do an unsympathetic role than one which appeals to the audience. Mr. Lewis, too, showed himself to be an actor of fine restraint in certain scenes that called up the highest emotional feeling.

Mr. Reuben Ship played David. Mr. Ship seems to have that quality for which many actors strive but which they seldom attain. He has the combination of three qualities that the essential for good acting, i.e., relaxation, timing, and restraint. When he came on the scene his mere presence, even when he had no lines, controlled the pace and kept the play from running away with itself. Liza Shoub did the best she could with a weak part, that of the Countess de Brancovitz. As Frau Muller, wife of Kurt, Fran Malls showed a fine sensuousness in certain parts. However, Miss Malls would do well to learn that essential in acting mentioned above, restraint. The love scenes would have been immeasurably improved if timing and restraint had been watched. Of the three Kurt children played by Moe Herscovitch, Zaida King and Irwin Browns; young Browns did a good job with a difficult role. The matron portrayed by Pauline Treuhub was well-done as were Michael Atrijh and Bertha Merovitz as the old family servants.

"Watch on the Rhine" was an ambitious undertaking by Miss Span's group. The set and lighting were fine but the make-up was a trifle startling. If the audience does not come out with a renewed and bitter feeling for Nazism and all it stands for, it is not the fault of Ade Span or her players. Lillian Hellman herself is to blame.

The play will be produced for the last time tonight. C. J. L.

During manoeuvres the battalion was ordered to march 40 miles. Having finished the march the major rode up and said: "Men, there's been a mistake. I wanted you to march 40 miles in the opposite direction. Now if there's any man among you who thinks he CAN'T do it, let him step three paces forward".

As one man the entire battalion stepped forward except a little rear rank rookie. The major rode up and asked his name.

"Smith, sir, was the weak reply.

"Well, Smith, you're a credit to the army. Out of all the battalion you are the only one who wants to march the forty miles back".

"Wadda ya mean, croaked Smith, 'me walk back? Gosh, Major, I couldnt even step the three paces forward'.

"What is the difference between a college student and a bird fancier?"
"Spring it before I change my mind."
"A bird fancier loves his pet."
Hitler is closely supervising his Axis partner. The new motto over there is: "When in Rome, do as the Germans do."

Prof: "Name the three races of man."

Social Worker: "And what is you name, my good man?"
Convict: "999."
S. W.: "Oh, but that's not your real name."
Convict: "Now, that's only me pen name."

Letter Forum

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

I would like to make use of your columns to pay a tribute to Miss Kay Chard, Mr. Martin Lambert, and all the other Architects who devoted so much time, energy and ability to the decorations at the Harvesters' Ball. People who should know have said that these were the best decorations that the Union Ballroom has ever seen, and they contributed in no small way to the success of the Ball. Thus it is only fair to give a measure of credit where so much is due.

Yours sincerely,
ALEXANDER STALKER,
Law II.

Red Icemen Play Friday: Gridders Compete for Title

McGill Pucksters in Fine Fettle for First Tilt in Defence Loop

C.O.T.C. Contingent to Parade to Forum for Opening Match of Season

McGill pucksters went through their snappiest practice to date yesterday afternoon at the Forum. With all players showing tricky stickhandling and good back-checking, there were prospects of the Redmen putting out one of their best hockey teams in recent years. The defencemen were right in there showing that even though the forwards were good, the guardians of the blue line were not exactly asleep on their feet.

With only four days remaining before their first game in the National Defence Hockey League, the McGill squad has been pretty well picked out, with only a few positions not yet definitely fixed. Chief item of new interest is the fact that Herb Owen, one of McGill's better hockey players of the past few years, turned out yesterday at the practice, and will be resuming his position at defence on the team. Owen, who graduated from medicine last year, is at present interning at Western Hospital, and his presence on the squad, surprising though it may be, nonetheless assures a powerful defence. His power displayed yesterday was a forecast that he will be playing one of his best years this season.

WARD ON DEFENCE. Paired with Owen at defence will be Bruce Ward, whose ability is evident from the fact that he was last year a valuable member of the Royals team in the Senior hockey circuit. Unable to play outside of McGill this year because of pressure of studies, Ward will be concentrating his full hockey spirit into his play for the Alma Mater, and may be depended upon to give a good display.

Playing goalie will be Ross Ritchie, another ex-Royal man, who played with Bud Farmer and Ward two years ago for the junior Royals in the Memorial Cup playdowns. Ritchie will be subbed by two more good men in Moncel and MacEachran.

POWERFUL LINES. The forward lines have a semblance of all-star character. While the numbers one, two and three lines have yet to be definitely arranged in that order, their make-up has been pretty well chosen. One line will consist of Bob Blair, Costigan and Bud Farmer. The latter is one of the fleetest amateurs in the district. A second line will be the powerhouse line of Bill MacDonald, Bruce Crutchfield and Tommy Hale. Each of these men sparked their teams last year in the Intramural League in great fashion, and now, collected as they are on one line, are sure to provide a triple threat to any opposition they meet. The other line will consist of Dick Lockwood, Ross Nicholson and Humphries, unless Spiller replaces one of these men. The other defencemen will be chosen from amongst Willis, Vin Young, Hylands and Gagnon.

The members of the squad, individually and collectively, have displayed a tremendous amount of enthusiasm about the team, and their fine spirit and good showing in practices makes them confident of winding up the season amongst the leaders in the lead. Their teamwork has been greatly improved due to the painstaking efforts of Coach Bobby Bell. The latter's excellent tips have been readily taken by the members of the squad, who have complete confidence in him. A new angle on aiding offensive and defensive play will be the session on Wednesday night, when the Coach will illustrate the finer points on a blackboard. He is making sure that his players know what is what when they start the season.

Student Labour Club Meeting. The second open meeting of the Student Labour Club will take place this Thursday, November 12th, at the Union. At this meeting the executive will be elected, and an address, "Labour Speaks for Offensive Action," will be presented by a Metal Trades Council speaker. All students and faculty members are invited to attend.

Apparently all the rave notices went to the heads of the W.H.S. squad, for they certainly played far poorer football than they have displayed in the past. The Black and White deserve full credit for their brilliant brand of football but one cannot help but wonder what the

Mixed Fencing Inaugurated in Gym Practices

Exhibition Match To Be Played by Tully and Otis

By M.D.

Fencing at McGill has finally come into its own as an attraction for all students. On the Saturday past the first mixed fencing took place and was a complete success. The practice started at 3.00 p.m. and was supposed to last till 4.30. However, so great was the interest of the participants, that some stayed far beyond the intended time.

GOOD TURNOUT. About thirty fencers of both sexes were present, and all were able to fence continuously throughout the practice. This was a great contrast to former affairs where a short bout would generally be followed by a long wait for an opportunity to practise some more. Furthermore, it was agreed by all taking part that more was learned in this one session than in the previous three or four. This was due to the fact that each person had the chance to parry with a number of opponents, and thus were able to learn how to oppose various styles of fencing.

These classes will henceforth be inaugurated as a weekly practice at the same hour as previously. On Saturday, November 21, an affair of special interest has been arranged. Besides the regular mixed practice there will be given a special exhibition by two former Olympic stars. These are Frank Tully and Charles Otis, both of whom are well-known in the fencing world, and who should provide an especial attraction to fencing fans.

Coed Sports

FENCING. The R.V.C. Fencing Club meet in the Lower Gym in R.V.C. on Tuesdays and Fridays at 5.00 p.m. All Freshies and other newcomers are welcome. Equipment is provided and George Tully will again be in charge of the class.

BADMINTON. There will be mixed badminton every Saturday night at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium, and every Tuesday from 7-10 at R.V.C. Inter-section games will begin shortly, and all those interested should get in touch with Margaret McGarry.

SWIMMING. The Swimming Club will meet on Tuesday evenings from 8 to 9 p.m. at the Y.W.C.A. pool, 1124 Dorchester Street West, starting October 27th.

BADMINTON. There will be a mixed badminton tournament on Saturday, Nov. 14 at the Gym. The journey will start at 7.00 p.m. and last until 9.30, with partners being arranged by the Committee as players arrive. After the playing there will be dancing till midnight.

final outcome would have been had West Hill been on its game.

We have just noticed an article in which Johnny Beazley stated that he was giving up baseball for good and that he would make the Army a permanent career. Well, we wish him luck in that most praiseworthy ambition. Come what may, the

Badminton to Have Dance Following Play

Mixed Meet Will Be Held This Saturday

By A. R.

The birdie fans will meet on Saturday eve for their first dance of the season in the gymnasium. These informal meetings proved very popular last year when both coeds and students flocked to the gym to bat the bird and swing their partners.

There will be a mixed round robin tournament from 7.00 to 9.30. The earlier you get to the gym, the more games you will play. No advanced entries are necessary and the partners will be assigned upon arrival at the gym.

BIRDIES DANCE. From 9.45 to 12.00 there will be dancing in the B.W.F. Room. Soft drinks will also be on sale at a special refreshment counter. Music provided by a Juke Box will be suited to every taste. Those who feel like sitting out a few dances will be able to do so in the Women's Reception Room.

The admission is free as usual and all McGill Men and women are welcome. The invitation also extends to Macdonald College, but no outsiders will be admitted. The Badminton Club sponsors this evening, and does not wish the players to invite persons from outside the University, as there are already a large crowd of fans at McGill.

This is one of the only sports club at McGill which features at the same time both a sports meet and a dance. The arrangement proved most popular last year, both to the Engineers and the Coeds, because of its original character. From the look of things, it will gather many more large crowds this year and provide a splendid "two in one" evening of fun to all the badminton fans.

Freshman star proved he had a heart that was full of the stuff that makes men. In his first year in the big time the young rookie from St. Louis not only gained 21 victories as compared to only seven setbacks during the regular schedule but won two games against the murderous Yanks in the post season classic. No matter if he never throws another ball again, Johnny has earned a place with the immortals of the diamond by the heroic display in the brief moments he filled across the foothills.

McGill to Play Verdun For City Championship

Northern Lights

By Aurora

Heartened by a dawn as clear as sleet and pink as elephants (as seen by the stragglers from the Med. banquet) eleven leading lights of the M.O.C. went North last Sunday. Among the bunch were two fugitives from the Physicians' Festival who, on two hours' sleep intended to scale the dizzy heights of Val David. They were, perhaps, not the least relieved of the would-be climbers when a heavy hoarfrost was discovered at St. Jerome and two inches of snow at Shawbridge.

Johnny Brett's pronunciation of the question was accordingly received with enthusiasm—although some of the now-veteran mountaineers were sorry to say what looks like a long farewell to climbing for the winter. The party got off at St. Marguerite and set off on what now is a well-marked trail—over Hill 60 and Phillip's Hill to (eventually) Shawbridge. The pitfalls of this route are ploughed fields and the railroad—which it seems impossible to avoid, deviate how you may. One happy hiker chorlited: "Railroad lies!" In a hysterical sort of way as soon as the tracks came in sight—and automatically fell into the "Step, skip one" routine which seems to be the only way of walking on railroads.

As usual, the food situation was bizarre. Those happy-go-lucky people who leave all their preparations till Sunday morning certainly turn up with the darndest things to eat. One bright boy (incidentally, Honours in Chemistry) had three pounds of hamburger, no onions and no salt. Which, of course, is a chemical mis-statement. Pardon us. Another incident, which by now seems to have become routine, was the separation of odd members of the party from the food supply for just long enough to ruin their chances.

Supper was eaten at Three Creeks and when, finally, a move was made for Shawbridge it was past seven o'clock—which left just over an hour to catch the train at the other end of four and a half miles of complete darkness. However, guided by a struggling flashlight's fitful gleam (unquote) the Outing Club arrived at Shawbridge before the train with very little to spare.

Commenting on the excellent job of trail-marking which the club has done, one embittered woodsman remarked: "Yes, we've got it all marked—except for the vital places." All that probably means is that wherever the trail forked he saw six roads, only one of which was marked—he being a survivor of the previous night's banquet. However, next week will be spent checking up on the markers and putting the final touches before the curtain rises on skiing.

At a meeting of the General Council last week plans were discussed for a general meeting to be held soon. This will serve as a get-together for the new and veteran members, badges will be handed out, ski movies will be shown, everyone interested begged, prayed, urged and pleaded with to turn up—and all that sort of thing. Watch the Daily like a hawk for further announcements.

Undeclared Redmen In Double-header On Saturday

At a special meeting held last night by members of the Q.R.F.U. it was decided that McGill's football squad would play against the Verdun Grads on Saturday afternoon for the City Championship. This game will take place as the second half of a double-header to start at 2.00 p.m. at Molson's Stadium. In the first game the Air Force will meet in a semi-final game, the winner to play Verdun Grads the following Saturday for the Q.R.F.U. championship, that is, the Provincial championship.

UNDEFEATED TEAMS

The indecision which has been prevalent among members of the Red team as to whether they would play again this year having now been completely done away with, the squad will once again have the opportunity to show their ability on the field. McGill has yet to be beaten this year, and the same applies to the Verdun aggregate. In their first game of the season the Redmen put on a terrific attack which smeared the Army team from Huntingdon Training Centre under by the score of 22-5. Then, on the Saturday just passed, the old McGill spirit came to the fore once more, and the Air Force suffered as a result. After being behind in the 5-0 score, the Redmen pulled up even and went on to win 19-10.

Doug Kerr's team will in all probability line up about the same as in their last game, with Poulson at flying wing, Futterer Hall and Williams as halves, Scobie at quarter, Farlinger at snap, Benjamin and Gerendge as insides, Dixon and Little as middles and Patrick and Milholland as outsiders.

TWELVE MINUTE PERIODS.

It is possible that the McGill-Verdun game will not consist of regulation fifteen minute periods, but instead, of four twelve-minute quarters. While this is not definite, the suggestion was brought up at last night's meeting of the Q.R.F.U., and seemed to meet with general approval. Nevertheless an exciting struggle is envisaged as the two unbeaten squads are both very powerful, and the shorter periods will not favor either team. The greatest campus spirit of the year is expected to be aroused as the McGill team represents a great opportunity for the University to garner at least one championship during the year. With the squad in such fine fettle this chance will not be so readily thrown away.

In South Bend, or 100,000 in Philadelphia to watch the carnage. But all of the proceeds go to a good cause. The rich stakes allow football teams to organize colleges throughout the nation for the further advance of our great educational system. In short, the process is what a chemist would call "auto catalytic," or, to those who are not chemists, is similar to the mistake made by so many army rookies who attempt to impress their superiors by doing their assignments in record time, only to be told that this was so well done that they had merited the opportunity to do twice as much next time, and so on again and again.

The whole thing is getting too vast in its scope for even my comprehension, and so I shall leave it unfinished here.

But, Gee, I'd almost start walking to Pasadena right now if they would let me sit in on the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day. Yes, I, even I am a football addict.

Pratt's recital at McGill precedes an extensive Canadian tour. Mr. Pratt was so well impressed with the reception of the students last year that he was pleased to play here again. His program will be announced shortly.

Admission will be $1.00 for students and $.25 for non-students. Once again, support in great numbers is urged, to ensure the success of the series.

to take double roles, while some female members of the club have not had any parts at all, as yet. Care is being taken, however, to use different people in the casting each week so that everyone may have a chance to display his talents to the full. In particular, if there is anyone of personable voice around the campus they will be welcomed with open arms when they poke their heads around the door of the Music Room in the Union.

Speaking of Sports

Bob Feller only to mention a few have already hung up their gloves for the duration. These men were among the greats of the diamond who when their country called forgot all personal glory to rush to the defense of their country. Who knows what new heights Feller would have attained on the mound or Williams at the plate had their careers not been cut short by something far bigger than anything else? True, when the war is over some will come back undulled by the time they have been out of the game but some may never come back due to advancing years or the many tragedies that cannot fail to accompany a war as brutal and ferocious as the one we are engaged in at the present time.

STUDENTS AND THE WAR

Pursuance of courses seems to perplex many people who think that university students are "draft-dodgers." We are constantly being reminded that students are a "privileged" class. We deny this because the student of today must work harder than ever to be a success. The question of a student's status in war-time has been clearly defined. We are doing more work than many who have undertaken the so-called "essential" jobs. Indeed we are a special not privileged class.

Others are inclined to believe that students who attend universities are the sons and daughters of parents who are able to provide them with sufficient financial assistance to guard them against military call-up. Instead nearly fifty per cent. of the students are self-supporting and many of the remainder are partially self-supporting. This condition occurred long before the war started and implies even more so in wartime because the students are taking summer employment far more seriously. Canadian universities have so arranged their time-tables as to enable students to earn enough money in the summer to assist them in the following winter.

If there are no students trained in the higher forms of education who will guide the country in days of chaos and depression which are bound to follow this war to some extent, regardless of the planning of the fathers of the "modern" government, are the people going to allow the reins of democracy pass into the hands of men who are paying huge sums to stay out of the forces? They are in no position to be in charge of the affairs of a nation when there can be students in their places who have studied and worked for such positions. Unfortunately though, a few are shoved through a university and put in power due to financial greediness. In the past this condition has been all too prevalent. Students and graduates of the future are out to remedy the situation.

Are students dodging their national obligations? Why are they when every year they fulfill government requirements. Male students of New Brunswick have joined His Majesty's forces in no small number and we feel other universities have equalled if not bettered the record of U.N.B.

Medical and dentistry students are trained every year as well as engineers and other science students and the government is fully aware of the need for such trained technicians. Canada is not the only country which is promoting such a condition. In Great Britain, Russia and even beleaguered China, universities are maintained under conditions which too few Canadians have come to realize.

We should not for a moment forget sacrifices made by Upper Canadian students. They have relinquished an easier life in favor of —Editorial in The Brunswickian.

TO THE LADIES

This editorial is dedicated to the ladies.

This is your hour to shine. Women today have been called into practically every vocation to fill the gap left by men joining the armed forces. Women have penetrated the factories: they are helping to build the planes, guns, and many other necessities for war. They are doing these tasks well, too, as far as is known.

Now is the time for women to prove their abilities. Through the years it has been a struggle for women to achieve success outside the home. There has always been someone to say, "Women haven't the intelligence," or "Women haven't the stamina."

Today, women are getting their chance, not only in war industries but in schools and colleges as well. Probably women will constitute a large proportion of the enrollment in schools of higher learning in the near future. They must make the most of their opportunities in order to serve better their country now and in the future. No matter what the task, each woman should do her best and prove her efficiency to the world.

This editorial is not advocating that women rule the world. It is not advocating that women take over all the jobs; not at all. The world of the future will need both men and women who are intelligent and trained. Therefore, women must be ready to do their part and to fulfill present expectations of them.

There must be no lethargy after the war. Women must not be content to sink back into the life of cards and movies and let life go by. They can and must keep the respect they are winning.

Women of the world, today is yours. Make the most of it!—Daily Athenaeum.

CASSEROLE

Quite a discussion was aroused in the Public Speaking Club over placing men in the kitchen, etc. If the worst came to pass, our fair co-eds will be ahead of less educated women in their chase for men, what with all their running after escorts for the Waunaite and the coming alesia, the Wa-Wa Weekend. At that they might learn something from Daisy Mae.

Sire—Lady Dodiva rides without.

Another Sire (after looking without)—Very tactfully put, my man.

One of the lady Engineers is reported by the fallible Gateway as having been born "in 1920, twelve years ago." We thought regular girls reached an age-limit somewhere between sweet sixteen and sophisticated twenty-one. But the Engineers must be first in everything, even vintage.

Once there were three kittens, Pfft, Pfft-Pfft, and Pfft-Pfft-Pfft. One day Pfft caught a cold and the others did all they could, but he died and they buried him. So everyone was quite anxious when Pfft-Pfft-Pfft caught a cold, too, and they tried to get Pfft-Pfft to call a doctor, but he wouldn't. He said he had called a doctor for his late brother, and now he had one Pfft in the grave.

Maid—Professor, the next room is on fire!
Prof.—Why worry me? Am I in the next room?

Magistrate—On what grounds do you base your charges that these two men are insane?

Policeman—Well, sir, it was like this. I found the Scotchman flinging packages of tea all over street, and the Jew was carefully picking them up and handing them back.

Nothing annoys a man more than to take out a strawberry blonde and get the raspberry.
—The Gateway.

The old lady was looking for something to grumble about. She entered the butcher's shop with the light of battle in her eyes.

"I believe you sell diseased meat here."

"Worse," replied the butcher blandly.

"What do you mean—worse?" demanded the astonished patron.

"The meat we sell is dead," confided the butcher in a stage whisper.

—Manitoba.

Not going to do it for a dime no more; I did it last night 'till my back was sore. Fifteen cents is now my price. Shoe shine, mister?

—The Brunswickian.

"I don't like those eggs you sent me yesterday," said the customer. "What was wrong with them, madam?" asked the grocer. "I thought they were rather under-sized for their age."
—Ubyssy.

Annual Photographs

The following graduating students are expected to have their pictures taken at Jacoby Studios, 1541 Crescent Street Wednesday, for publication in the Annual. They will be taken at any time from 9.30 a.m. to 6.30 p.m. without appointment, except Saturdays. Appointments for sittings at other hours, if necessary, may be made by phoning PL. 1075 for an appointment.

The price, $2.25 (or $2.75 if a finished portrait is desired), is payable at time of sitting.
